

Hope To Marry

Proactively Pursuing Marriage

As Christians we can serve God in singlehood (like Paul talks about in 1 Corinthians 7), but many of us will likely want to become married at some point since marriage is God's natural design for fulfilling our drive towards companionship and sexuality. While movies talk about romantic relationships in terms of destiny or fate, a Christian recognizes that ultimately God is at work in our lives and choices.

STEP ONE: Seek Direction Within Christian Community

Online social media outlets provide ample opportunities for superficial connections. God calls us to be vibrant, authentic community within our families and within the body of Christ. Your church can be among the best places for meeting a potential spouse and receiving guidance and support towards marriage.

STEP TWO: Move Beyond Recreational Relationships

One of the clearest messages for singles in the Bible is the call to sexual purity (1 Corinthians 6:13-18, Ephesians 5:3 and Colossians 3:5) – not an easy feat in our sex-saturated culture. Making a commitment to sexual purity, however, is the primary means for intentionally moving toward marriage in a culture that promotes recreational relationships. Couples who stay sexually pure not only honor God, but they avoid much of the confusion that can harm future relationships.

STEP THREE: Seek the Right Kind of Soul Mate

A study by the National Marriage Project found that 94% of young adults believe the person they marry should be their soul mate. That pursuit leaves many looking in vain for the perfect person who is specially designed to complete them. Both the Bible and marriage research, however, show that the more important “soul” mate to is someone who shares your spiritual commitment to Christ.

It's also good for dating Christians to understand that perfection doesn't exist, because “all have fallen short” (Romans 3:23). Instead of seeking someone to complete us, we are called to lay down our lives for each other (1 John 3:16). This expectation makes for a much more realistic path to finding a good fit for marriage.

STEP FOUR: Be Proactive

Living in purity and Christian community makes it easier to find a mate who shares your spiritual values, but there's more you can do as a steward of your future marriage (Matthew 25:14-27).

Titus 2 strongly encourages young men and women to learn from older men and women. In addition to Christian discipleship, you also can ask mentors for candid feedback about how you can improve in a variety of areas to be more prepared for marriage. Additionally, there's nothing wrong with asking mentors to keep you in mind as they become aware of other singles seeking a Godly spouse.

Some of your best opportunities to be proactive will grow out of faithful prayer. As you pray, God will shape you and open your eyes to new and unnoticed opportunities.

It's important to note that men have a distinct responsibility in proactively finding a mate. Genesis 2:24 says that a man will leave his parents and cleave to his wife. Proverbs 18:22 says, "He who finds a wife, finds what is good and receives favor from the Lord." Notice it doesn't say "he who stumbles over a wife" as if it is a happenstance occurrence. God calls men to do their part in seeking out women of character and showing leadership in pursuing a woman for marriage. Specifically, men should be willing to take the risk of rejection. No one likes to hear "no," but it's a risk men of faith and leadership should be willing to face.

STEP FIVE: Develop Your Talents and Gifts

As a practicing Christian, you should develop your talents and challenge yourself intellectually and socially by participating in a variety of activities that stretch you beyond your comfort zone. Not only does this make you a good steward of the gifts God has given you, but also it broadens your horizons.

Pray about the type of spouse you want to be and actively work towards cultivating those qualities while you trust God to bring the right person into your path.
